Spurgeon Quotes on Prayer:

- Do the angels veil their faces before You, and shall I be content to prattle through a form with no soul and no heart?
- God will hear His people at the beginning of their prayers if the condition of their heart is ready for it.
- God's mercy visits every house where night and morning prayers are made, but where these are neglected, sin is incurred.
- Has not that which is heaven's greatest boon to man (prayer), become to us a dry dead duty?
- Have you only repeated many a form of prayer, while the breathing desire, the living words, have not come from your lips?
- I believe that God hears your prayers because there is a secret work of the Spirit going on within you teaching you to pray.
- True prayer is neither a mere mental exercise nor a vocal performance. It is a spiritual commerce with the Creator of heaven and earth.
